

Hulse L. Budd

Hulse L. Budd, 42, of Huntington, W. Va., died Aug. 4 at St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington.

He was born in Newton and was a graduate of Hackettstown High School in 1967. He also attended West Virginia Wesleyan College and was graduated from the Cincinnati College of Mortuary Science.

He was a funeral director and a volunteer fire chief.

He is survived by his wife, Chyrl Kay Conner Budd; two sons, Hulse L. Budd Jr. and David Mark Budd, both at home; two sisters and a brother.

The Beard Mortuary of Huntington, with whom he was affiliated, was in charge of arrangements.

Star Gazette
August 15, 1991
Obituary:
Hulse L. Budd
Date of Death
August 4, 1991

Hulse Budd

HACKETTSTOWN — Hulse Budd died on Saturday at his winter home in Cape Canaveral, Fla., after a short illness. He was 72.

Born in Budd Lake, he lived here most of his life until he retired from his job as a radio man with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Since then he had maintained a winter home in Florida.

He was a member and past master of Barnegat Lodge 150, F. & A. M. He was former owner and manager of Budd's Pavilion, Budd Lake.

He is survived by two sons, Walter G. Joppatowne, Md., and Hulse L. Hamblin, W. Va.; two daughters, Mrs. Jack Savage, Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Herman E. Smith, Merritt Island, Fla.; a brother, J. Dewitt, and a sister, Mrs. L. Milton Hibler, both here; and 15 grandchildren.

Services will be held Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Cochran Funeral Home, 905 High St., here.

Daily Record,
February 2, 1981

OBITUARY: Hulse Budd
Date of Death,
January 31, 1981