

Lindley G. Cook, agriculturist

CHESTER — Lindley G. Cook, an agriculture specialist at Rutgers University and governor of the N.J. District of Kiwanis International, died Thursday at home after a long illness. He was 93.

Born in Madison, he lived in Hackettstown for many years, moving to Chester in 1941.

Mr. Cook was a direct descendant of George Hammell Cook, founder of Cook College at Rutgers University.

From 1935 to 1940, he was a conservationist in soil conservation for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. From 1940 to 1945, he was an extension specialist in conservation for the College of Agriculture at Rutgers, and from 1945 to 1958, he was associate director of the N.J. Cooperative Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics.

He then was a salesman for J.C.

Snively & Sons Inc. in Lebanon, Pa., retiring 20 years ago.

He was a life member of the Hackettstown Kiwanis Club.

His wife, Natalie, died in 1981.

Surviving are a nephew and niece.

Arrangements are by the Cochran Funeral Home, 905 High St., Hackettstown.
