

OBITUARY

Mrs. Anna Trumbower McLean, seventy-one years old, died yesterday morning at her home on Moore street from chronic Bright's disease, following an illness of several months.

A month ago while visiting her brother, Rev. William Trumbower, pastor of the Andover Methodist Episcopal Church, the disease developed seriously and a general decline followed. Tuesday she was brought to her home here by automobile and enjoyed the ride, but on Wednesday her condition became critical and it was apparent the end was near. Her only son, Henry T. MacLean, of Hartford, Conn., had been with his mother for several days past.

Mrs. Mclean was a daughter of Rev. Henry Trumbower, for many years a minister of Methodist churches in the Newark Conference. Her mother's maiden name was Miss Sophie Lott.

Mrs. Mclean's academic education was acquired at Pennington Seminary, and following which she became a teacher in various schools. She was one of the early members of the Callilogian Society, which originated at Pennington and is now being perpetuated at Centenary Collegiate Institute.

Following her marriage to Amos McLean, who died about five months ago, her residence has been in the home in which she died. Her life was featured by a distinctive loyalty to home and church, which was perpetuated until physical conditions prevented. For more than twenty-five years she had given most faithful service as superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday school of the local Methodist Episcopal Church. Through this service she has left an imperishable memorial in the lives of many people who will recall her teachings When they were little folk enrolled in her department.

Funeral services will be held at half-past two o'clock on Saturday afternoon at the house. Rev. John O. Sparnon, pastor of Trinity Church, will officiate. Interment will follow in Union Cemetery.
